

The Allendale Branch Library Presents
Nuclear Impact: Broken Atoms in Our Hands
Anthology Release Party and Reading

Saturday, March 4, 2017, 2:00 p.m.

1130 S. Marengo Ave., Pasadena, California

Featuring Readings by Teresa Mei Chuc (Editor),
Khadija Anderson, Heather Bourbeau, Don Kingfisher Campbell,
Doren Damico, Michael C Ford, Richard Jarrette, Mariko Kitakubo,
Deborah P Kolodji, Shahe Mankerian, Paul Lobo Portuges, William Pitt Root,
Marc Swan, Pam Uschuk, Yun Wang, and Kathabela Wilson

In Nuclear Impact: Broken Atoms in Our Hands is the symphonic voices of 163 poets from around the United States and the world, from places such as India, the United Kingdom, Ireland, Canada, the Philippines, Japan, South Africa, Guam, Singapore, Poland, Australia, France, Vietnam, Dubai (United Arab Emirates), Germany, China, and Pakistan, examining the impact of nuclear power and warfare on human life and the planet. The poems in the anthology take us through Navajo-Hopi reservations, the Nevada desert, Los Alamos, Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Three Mile Island, Trinity, air raid drills, Chernobyl, Pripjat, Ogoturuk Valley, Fukushima, nuclear testing in India and Pakistan, and more. Traveling the depths of the human soul, hand in hand, these poems remind us of what we have released in the atom and our responsibility to all life on Mother Earth.

Published by Shabda Press (576 pages)

Copies of the anthology will be available for $25.00

Refreshments will be served

Further information: (626) 744-7260 or pasadenapubliclibrary.net

COMMUNITY • Tradition • Innovation

